PHOTO BY GROVER

PETER D. YEAGER

Peter D. Yeager died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Gertie flowed close by affording

PETER D. YEAGER

Peter D. Yeager died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Gertie Gum, Thursday morning, December 6, 1906, after a short illness, aged 76 years. The cause of his death was an attack of grip.

Mr. Yeager was born at Travelers Repose (now Bartow) June 22, 1830. At the outbreak of the Civil War he volunteered in the Confederate army and at the skirmish around Camp Bartow he was taken prisoner and sent to Camp Chase. Later he was transferred to the prison at Rock Island, Illinois. On his return after being released from prison he found his house and all his property burned. Not a fence was left standing on the place and he stated that the situation almost made him feel as though he would have to give up. Seeing a bright future ahead of him he began life anew. Lumber was hard to get and he bought an old house at Greenbank and moved it to his place where from the lumber thus obtained he built a new house. In a few years he became one of the most prosperous farmers in the county. In the year 1857 he married Margaret Bible, a daughter of Jacob and Sallie Bible. She preceded her husband to the grave by about four years. To Mr. and Mrs. Yeager there were born six children, two sons and four daughters—Mrs. Harper McLaughlin, of Bath county, Va; Mrs. C. E. Pritchard, of Dunmore; Mrs. Henry Flenner, deceased; Mrs. Dyer Gum and Willie J. Yeager, of Bartow; and Charles A. Yeager, of Marlinton.

Mr. Yeager was a lifelong and consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and was one of the most respected citizens of the county. His word was as good as his bond and one of our citizens, who has had extensive business relations with him, stated that he never required any written contracts or agreements when dealing with the gentleman. Nothing that we could say would add to the encomium of the deceased as the news of his death telegraphed to flowed close by affording an abundance of mountain trout, and Travelers' Repose was the sportsman's paradise.

The chubby form and kind, genial face of "Uncle Peter" will be recalled by many of them, scattered throughout the states, and they will hear of his death with sorrow.

Fifty years ago, in the days of the old Trotter back line from Staunton to Beverly, the Yeager home was one of the relays, and it was the Yeagers, Arbogasts and Barners who then owned the dense forests of pine and oak out of which strangers have made their millions, and speculators have gone mad.

The passing away of these old men leaves little to remind one of former times, for the greed of this century is rapidly and completely transforming this virgin valley.

While the change brought wealth to this typical old mountaineer, the new order did not change his nature nor enhance his happiness, and it is a reasonable claim that in the evening of his life, drowsy with the last long sleep, he called to mind the twilight of former years, when he was lulled to rest by the song of the whippoorwill, the rippling waters and the murmuring of his native pines.

Eden Minus Adam.

An Adamless Eden in Texas is the dream of Mary F. Hayden, a well known Chicago novelist, who is arranging to establish a colony of a thousand women in Refue county, Tex., on the line of the San Antonio and Arkansas Pass railway. She has acquired title to 5,000 acres, and is now at work on the plans for her new and unique colony.

She will permit her women colonists to have husbands if that condition cannot be avoided, but they will have no part in affairs of the colony. She will endeavor to obtain from the Texas legislature permission for women to Yeager, J. W. Baxter, Geo. L. Eakle, N. C. McNeil and S. W. Nickell.

This ticket will be known as the "Citizens' Ticket. We do not know whether there will be another ticket in the field or not. It is reported that one of our citizens was circulating a petition yesterday to get the names of the present council on the ticket, but as we did not see the petition we cannot verify the report. Neither are we certain whether or not the present officials are anxious for the job again. At the present time we have not heard that another convention will be called today.

Prison Report.

Warden Charles E. Haddox, of the West Virginia penitentiary at Moundsville, has made his report to Governor Dawson for the months of November and December, as follows:

RECEIVED.

State prisoners.....
U. S. prisoners.....
Total

DISCHARGED.

State prisoners, expiration of sentence.....
Parole.....
Conditional pardon.....
U. S. prisoners, expiration of sentence.....
Total
Net increase

Prison population November 1,220; population December 1,245.

More Wrecks.

Two wrecks are reported on Greenbrier Division this ... The first one occurred ... evening at mile post 15 ju... Anthony. Two or three ... the west bound freight tr... derailed and the passeng... the next day were comp... transfer, causing a delay ... eral hours.

Wednesday afternoon ... five cars on the east ... through freight were de... Improvement Lick, six m... of Marlinton. Nearly ... was spent by the wreck ... in getting the track clea... passenger trains were a... pelled to transfer. In t... the wrecks were caused ... spreading due to the re... dition of the ties.

obtained he built a new house In a few years he became one of the most prosperous farmers in the county. In the year 1857 he married Margaret Bible, a daughter of Jacob and Sallie Bible. She preceded her husband to the grave by about four years. To Mr. and Mrs. Yeager there were born six children, two sons and four daughters—Mrs. Harper McLaughlin, of Bath county, Va; Mrs. C. E. Pritchard, of Dunmore; Mrs. Henry Flenner, deceased; Mrs. Dyer Gum and Willie J. Yeager, of Bartow; and Charles A Yeager, of Marlinton

Mr. Yeager was a lifelong and consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and was one of the most respected citizens of the county. His word was as good as his bond and one of our citizens, who has had extensive business relations with him, stated that he never required any written contracts or agreements when dealing with the gentleman. Nothing that we could say would add to the encomium of the deceased as the news of his death telegraphed to the Richmond Times-Dispatch from Monterey on the day of his death which we here append.

The death of Peter D. Yeager, which occurred this morning at his old home near the line of the two Virginias, removes a veritable landmark of the Alleghanies. He was an octogenarian, and his long life was spent near the place where he died—the valley of the Greenbrier.

He was long known as the proprietor of Travelers' Repose, a popular hostlery and favorite resort of sportsmen, far and near. Prior to the construction of the Chesapeake and Ohio—the Greenbrier branch—the valley in which his resort was located was an ideal hunting ground, the two prongs of the Greenbrier, which

Eden Minus Adam.

An Adamless Eden in Texas is the dream of Mary F. Hayden, a well known Chicago novelist, who is arranging to establish a colony of a thousand women in Refugio county, Tex., on the line of the San Antonio and Arkansas Pass railway. She has acquired title to 5,000 acres, and is now at work on the plans for her new and unique colony.

She will permit her women colonists to have husbands if that condition cannot be avoided, but they will have no part in affairs of the colony. She will endeavor to obtain from the Texas legislature permission for women to exercise the right of suffrage in her colony, and all homes must be in the name of the wife.

Everything that is usually undertaken on Texas farms will be attempted by this Adamless colony, truck frrming, fruit raising, bee keeping, dairying, poultry raising, and other kindred farm and ranch pursuits.

Dies Boasting of Good Health.

Having just remarked to friends that he had never felt better since he left the river on which he ran for years as a steamboat steward, Edward Stoller, aged 73, fell dead of heart trouble at Louisville, Ky., November 27. He had just taken a glass of beer and had started toward the door, when he cried out with pain and fell.

most prosperous farmers in the county. In the year 1857 he married Margaret Bible, a daughter of Jacob and Sallie Bible. She preceded her husband to the grave by about four years. To Mr. and Mrs. Yeager there were born six children, two sons and four daughters—Mrs. Harper McLaughlin, of Bath county, Va; Mrs. C. E. Pritchard, of Dunmore; Mrs. Henry Flenner, deceased; Mrs. Dyer Gum and Willie J. Yeager, of Bartow; and Charles A Yeager, of Marlinton

Mr. Yeager was a lifelong and consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and was one of the most respected citizens of the county. His word was as good as his bond and one of our citizens, who has had extensive business relations with him, stated that he never required any written contracts or agreements when dealing with the gentleman. Nothing that we could say would add to the encomium of the deceased as the news of his death telegraphed to the Richmond Times-Dispatch from Monterey on the day of his death which we here append.

The death of Peter D. Yeager, which occurred this morning at his old home near the line of the two Virginias, removes a veritable landmark of the Alleghanies. He was an octogenarian, and his long life was spent near the place where he died—the valley of the Greenbrier.

He was long known as the proprietor of Travelers' Repose, a popular hostlery and favorite resort of sportsmen, far and near. Prior to the construction of the Chesapeake and Ohio—the Greenbrier branch—the valley in which his resort was located was an ideal hunting ground, the two prongs of the Greenbrier, which his happiness, and it is a reasonable claim that in the evening of his life, drowsy with the last long sleep, he called to mind the twilight of former years, when he was lulled to rest by the song of the whippoorwill, the rippling waters and the murmuring of his native pines.

Eden Minus Adam.

An Adamless Eden in Texas is the dream of Mary F. Hayden, a well known Chicago novelist, who is arranging to establish a colony of a thousand women in Refugio county, Tex., on the line of the San Antonio and Arkansas Pass railway. She has acquired title to 5,000 acres, and is now at work on the plans for her new and unique colony.

She will permit her women colonists to have husbands if that condition cannot be avoided, but they will have no part in affairs of the colony. She will endeavor to obtain from the Texas legislature permission for women to exercise the right of suffrage in her colony, and all homes must be in the name of the wife.

Everything that is usually undertaken on Texas farms will be attempted by this Adamless colony, truck frrming, fruit raising, bee keeping, dairying, poultry raising, and other kindred farm and ranch pursuits.

Dies Boasting of Good Health.

Having just remarked to friends that he had never felt better since he left the river on which he ran for years as a steamboat steward, Edward Stoller, aged 73, fell dead of heart trouble at Louisville, Ky., November 27. He had just taken a glass of beer and had started toward the door, when he cried out with pain and fell.

U. S. prisoners, pe sentence
Total
Net increa Prison popul
1,220; populat
1,145.

Two wrecks
Greenbrier D
The first one evening at mi
Anthony. Tw
the west boun derailed and t
the next day transfer, caus eral hours.

Wednesday five cars ou through freig Improvement of Marlinton was spent by in getting the passenger tra pelled to tra the wrecks w spreading de dition of the

Gave Kiss

At Sandu
Justice Garle lieved of the the relative ing turkeys, when James dealer, plead sault charge,
Esther Norto

Mrs. Nort claimed that some of his t her chicken gave her, aga kisses as goo

The men blame Dalzel

We print a

PETER D. YEAGER

r D. Yeager died at the f his daughter, Mrs. Gertie
Thursday morning, Decem-906, after a short illness.
years. The cause of his
as an attack of grip.
eager was born at Trav pose (now Bartow) June At the outbreak of the r he volunteered in the ate army and at the around Camp Bartow he prisoner and sent to ace Later he was trans
the prison at Rock linois. On his return released from pri on is house and all his rned. Not a fence was g on the place and he
the situation almost eel as though he would up. Seeing a bright
l of him he began life ber was hard to get ht an old house at nd moved it to his from the lumber thus built a new house In e became one of the ous farmers in the the year 1857 he aret Bible a daught-d Sallie Bible. She husband to the t four years. To Yeager there were
ren. two sons and
—Mrs. Harper Mc-
Bath county, Va;
hard, of Dunmore;
Tenner, deceased;
um and Willie J.
tow; and Charles arlinton

flowed close by affording an abundance of mountain trout, and Travelers' Repose was the sportsman's paradise.

The chubby form and kind, genial face of "Uncle Peter" will be recalled by many of them, scattered throughout the states, and they will hear of his death with sorrow.

Fifty years ago, in the days of the old Trotter hack line from Staunton to Beverly, the Yeager home was one of the relays, and it was the Yeagers, Arbogasts and Burners who then owned the dense forests of pine and oak out of which strangers have made their millions, and speculators have gone mad.

The passing away of these old men leaves little to remind one of former times, for the greed of this century is rapidly and completely transforming this virgin valley.

While the change brought wealth to this typical old mountaineer, the new order did not change his nature nor enhance his happiness, and it is a reasonable claim that in the evening of his life, drowsy with the last long sleep, he called to mind the twilight of former years, when he was lulled to rest by the song of the whippoorwill, the rippling waters and the murmuring of his native pines.

Eden Minus Adam.

An Adamless Eden in Texas is the dream of Mary F. Hayden, a well known Chicago novelist, who is arranging to establish a colony of a thousand women in Refue county, Tex., on the line of the San Antonio and Arkansas Pass railway. She has acquired title

Nickell.

This ticket will be known as the "Citizens' Ticket. We do not known whether there will be another ticket in the field or not. It is reported that one of our city dads was circulating a petition yesterday to get the names of the present council on the ticket, but as we did not see the petition we cannot verify the report. Neither are we certain whether or not the present officials are anxious for the job again. At the present time we have not heard that another convention will be called today.

Prison Report.

Warden Charles E. Haddox, of the West Virginia penitentiary at Moundsville, has made his report to Governor Dawson for the months of November and December, as follows:

RECEIVED.

State prisoners	39
U. S. prisoners	19
Total	58

DISCHARGED.

State prisoners, expiration of sentence	19
Parole	3
Conditional pardon	2
U. S. prisoners, expiration of sentence	9
Total	33
Net increase	25

Prison population November 1, 1,220; population December 1, 1,245.

More Wrecks.

Two wrecks are reported on the Greenbrier Division this week. The first one occurred Monday evening at mile post 15 just above Anthony. Two or three cars on the west bound freight train were derailed and the passenger trains the next day were compelled to transfer, causing a delay of several hours.

Wednesday afternoon four or five cars on the east bound through freight were derailed at Improvement Lick, six miles west of Marlinton. Nearly all night was spent by the wrecking crew in getting the track cleared. The

and his house and all his rty burned. Not a fence was anding on the place and he that the situation almost him feel as though he would give up. Seeing a bright ahead of him he began life Lumber was hard to get bought an old house at ank and moved it to his here from the lumber thus d he built a new house In ars he became one of the sperous farmers in the In the year 1857 he Margaret Bible a daughb and Sallie Bible. She her husband to the about four years. To Irs. Yeager there were hildren. two sons and ters—Mrs. Harper Mc of Bath county, Va; Pritchard; of Dunmore; ry Flenner, deceased; Gum and Willie J. Bartow; and Charles of Marlinton er was a lifelong and emner of the Metho pal Church, South, of the most respect of the county. His good as his bond and izens, who has had iness relations with hat he never requir n contracts or agree dealing with the thing that we could l to the encomium sed as the news telegraphed to l Times Dispatch on the day of his e here append.

Peter D. Yeager, this morning at ear the line of the removes a verit of the Alleghanies genarian, and his ent near th of which strangers have made their millions, and speculators have gone mad.

The passing away of these old men leaves little to remind one of former times, for the greed of this century is rapidly and completely transforming this virgin valley.

While the change brought wealth to this typical old mountaineer, the new order did not change his nature nor enhance his happiness, and it is a reasonable claim that in the evening of his life, drowsy with the last long sleep, he called to mind the twilight of former years, when he was lulled to rest by the song of the whippoorwill, the rippling waters and the murmuring of his native pines.

Eden Minus Adam.

An Adamless Eden in Texas is the dream of Mary F. Hayden, a well known Chicago novelist, who is arranging to establish a colony of a thousand women in Refue county, Tex., on the line of the San Antonio and Arkansas Pass railway. She has acquired title to 5,000 acres, and is now at work on the plans for her new and unique colony.

She will permit her women colonists to have husbands if that condition cannot be avoided, but they will have no part in affairs of the colony. She will endeavor to obtain from the Texas legislature permission for women to exercise the right of suffrage in her colony, and all homes must be in the name of the wife.

Everything that is usually undertaken [redacted] Texas farms will be attempted by this Adamless colony, truck frrming. fruit raising, bee keeping, dairying, poultry raising, and other kindred farm and ranch pursuits.

Dies Boasting of Good Health.

[redacted]aving just remarked to friends port to Governor Dawson for the months of November and December, as follows:

RECEIVED.

State prisoners	39
U. S. prisoners	19
Total	58

DISCHARGED.

State prisoners, expiration of sentence	19
Parole	3
Conditional pardon	2
U. S. prisoners, expiration of sentence	9
Total	33
Net increase	25

Prison population November 1, 1,220; population December 1, 1,245.

More Wrecks.

Two wrecks are reported on the Greenbrier Division this week. The first one occurred Monday evening at mile post 15 just above Anthony. Two or three cars on the west bound freight train were derailed and the passenger trains the next day were compelled to transfer, causing a delay of several hours.

Wednesday afternoon four or five cars on the east bound through freight were derailed at Improvement Lick, six miles west of Marlinton. Nearly all night was spent by the wrecking crew in getting the track cleared. The passenger trains were again compelled to transfer. In both cases the wrecks were caused by rails spreading due to the rotten condition of the ties.

Gave Kisses for Good Measure.

At Sandusky, Ohio, recently, Justice Garley, of Milan, was relieved of the puzzling question of the relative value of Thanksgiving turkeys, chickens and kisses, when James Dalzell, a poultry dealer, pleaded guilty to an assault charge, preferred by Mrs. Esther Norton, and was fined $10.

Mrs. Norton, who is pretty, claimed that Dalzell exchanged

PETER D. YEAGER

Peter D. Yeager died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clarita Dean, Thursday morning, December 6, 1906, after a short illness, aged 76 years. The cause of his death was an attack of grip.

Mr. Yeager was born at Trav elers Repose (now Barton) June 29, 1830. At the outbreak of the Civil War he volunteered in the Confederate army and at the skirmish around Camp Barton he was taken prisoner and sent to Camp Chase. Later he was transferred to the prison at Rock Island, Illinois. On his return after being released from prison he found his home and all his property burned. Not a fence was left standing on the place and he stated that the situation almost made him feel as though he might have to give up. Having a bright future ahead of him he began life anew. Lumber was hard to get and he bought an old house at Greenbank and moved it to his place where from the lumber thus obtained he built a new house. In a few years he became one of the most progressive farmers in the county. In the year 1867 he married Margaret Poole, a daughter of Jacob and Sallie Poole. She preceded her husband to the grave by about four years. To Mr. and Mrs. Yeager there were born six children, two sons and four daughters—Mrs. Harper Mc Laughlin of Rich county, Utah; Mrs. Clarita Dean, Mrs. Ida Kramer, Mrs. Ella Hiner and Messrs. Jacob and Peter Yeager, Jr., all of whom survive him.

Mr. Yeager was a man of strong character and was highly respected by all who knew him. He was a member of the Methodist church and lived a consistent Christian life. He was a man of strong convictions and was not afraid to express them. He was a man of few words but his actions showed clearly what he thought. He was a man of great energy and was always busy. He was a man of great faith and was always ready to help others. He was a man of great love and was always kind to his family and friends. He was a man of great wisdom and was always ready to give advice. He was a man of great courage and was always ready to face danger. He was a man of great patience and was always ready to wait. He was a man of great humility and was always ready to serve others. He was a man of great hope and was always ready to look forward to the future. He was a man of great charity and was always ready to forgive others. He was a man of great peace and was always ready to live in harmony with others. He was a man of great joy and was always ready to rejoice in the goodness of God. He was a man of great love and was always ready to love God and his fellow men. He was a man of great faith and was always ready to trust in God. He was a man of great hope and was always ready to look forward to the resurrection of the dead. He was a man of great charity and was always ready to forgive others as he hoped to be forgiven. He was a man of great peace and was always ready to live in harmony with others as he hoped to live in heaven. He was a man of great joy and was always ready to rejoice in the goodness of God as he hoped to rejoice in heaven. He was a man of great love and was always ready to love God and his fellow men as he hoped to love them in heaven. He was a man of great faith and was always ready to trust in God as he hoped to trust in heaven. He was a man of great hope and was always ready to look forward to the resurrection of the dead as he hoped to look forward to heaven. He was a man of great charity and was always ready to forgive others as he hoped to be forgiven in heaven. He was a man of great peace and was always ready to live in harmony with others as he hoped to live in heaven. He was a man of great joy and was always ready to rejoice in the goodness of God as he hoped to rejoice in heaven.

Fifty years ago, in the days of the old Trotter back line from Staunton southwards, the Yeager home was one of the relays, and it was the Yeagers, Arbogasts and Brewers who then owned the dozen forests of pine and oak out of which strangers have made their millions, and speculators have gone mad.

The passing away of those old men leaves little to remind one of former times, for the greed of this century is rapidly and completely transforming this virgin valley.

While the change brought wealth to this typical old mountaineer, the new order did not enhance his natural nor enhance his happiness, and it is a reasonable claim that in the evening of his life, drowsy with the last long sleep, he called to mind the untrammeled days of former years, when he was lulled to rest by the song of the whippoorwill, the rippling waters and the murmuring of the native pines.

Prison Report.

Warden Charles E. Haddox, of the West Virginia penitentiary at Moundsville, has made his report to Governor Dawson for the months of November and December, as follows:

RECEIVED.

State prisoners .....
U. S. prisoners .....
Total .....

DISCHARGED.

State prisoners, expiration of sentence .....
Parole .....
Conditional pardon .....
U. S. prisoners, expiration of sentence .....
Total .....
Net increase .....
Prison population November 1, 1906 .....
Prison population December 1, 1906 .....

Ran Away.

Warden Charles E. Haddox, of the West Virginia penitentiary at Moundsville, has made his report to Governor Dawson for the months of November and December, as follows:

RECEIVED.

State prisoners .....
U. S. prisoners .....
Total .....

DISCHARGED.

State prisoners, expiration of sentence .....
Parole .....
Conditional pardon .....
U. S. prisoners, expiration of sentence .....
Total .....
Net increase .....
Prison population November 1, 1906 .....
Prison population December 1, 1906 .....

Ran Away.

Warden Charles E. Haddox, of the West Virginia penitentiary at Moundsville, has made his report to Governor Dawson for the months of November and December, as follows:

RECEIVED.

State prisoners .....
U. S. prisoners .....
Total .....

DISCHARGED.

State prisoners, expiration of sentence .....
Parole .....
Conditional pardon .....
U. S. prisoners, expiration of sentence .....
Total .....
Net increase .....
Prison population November 1, 1906 .....
Prison population December 1, 1906 .....

agew. Latmer ... and he bought an old house at Greenbank and moved it to his place where from the lumber thus obtained he built a new house In a few years he became one of the most prosperous farmers in the county. In the year 1857 he married Margaret Bible a daughter of Jacob and Sallie Bible. She preceded her husband to the grave by about four years. To Mr. and Mrs. Yeager there were born six children. two sons and four daughters—Mrs. Harper McLaughlin, of Bath county, Va; Mrs. C. E. Pritchard, of Dunmore; Mrs. Henry Flenner, deceased; Mrs. Dyer Gum and Willie J. Yeager, of Bartow; and Charles A Yeager, of Marlinton

Mr. Yeager was a lifelong and consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and was one of the most respected citizens of the county. His word was as good as his bond and one of our citizens, who has had extensive business relations with him, stated that he never required any written contracts or agreements when dealing with the gentleman. Nothing that we could say would add to the encomium of the deceased as the news of his death telegraphed to the Richmond Times-Dispatch from Monterey on the day of his death which we here append.

The death of Peter D. Yeager, which occurred this morning at his old home near the line of the two Virginias, removes a veritable landmark of the Alleghanies valley.

While the change brought wealth to this typical old mountaineer, the new order did not change his nature nor enhance his happiness, and it is a reasonable claim that in the evening of his life, drowsy with the last long sleep, he called to mind the twilight of former years, when he was lulled to rest by the song of the whippoorwill, the rippling waters and the murmuring of his native pines.

Eden Minus Adam.

An Adamless Eden in Texas is the dream of Mary F. Hayden, a well known Chicago novelist, who is arranging to establish a colony of a thousand women in Refue county, Tex., on the line of the San Antonio and Arkansas Pass railway. She has acquired title to 5,000 acres, and is now at work on the plans for her new and unique colony.

She will permit her women colonists to have husbands if that condition cannot be avoided, but they will have no part in affairs of the colony. She will endeavor to obtain from the Texas legislature permission for women to exercise the right of suffrage in her colony, and all homes must be in the name of the wife.

Everything that is usually undertaken in Texas farms will be attempted by this Adamless colony, truck frrming. fruit raising, bee keeping, dairying, poultry raising, and other kindred farm sentence .....

Parole .....
Conditional pardon .....
U. S. prisoners, expiration of sentence .....
Total
Net increase
Prison population Novemb 1,220; population Decemb 1,245.

More Wrecks.

Two wrecks are reporte Greenbrier Division th The first one occurred evening at mile post 15 Anthony. Two or thre the west bound freight derailed and the passe the next day were co transfer, causing a de eral hours.

Wednesday aftern five cars on the through freight wer Improvement Lick, of Marlinton. Ne was spent by the in getting the trac passenger trains v pelled to transfer the wrecks were spreading due to dition of the tie

Gave Kisses

At Sandusk Justice Garley lieved of the the relative ing turkeys, word was as good as his bond and one of our citizens, who has had extensive business relations with him, stated that he never required any written contracts or agreements when dealing with the gentleman. Nothing that we could say would add to the encomium of the deceased as the news of his death telegraphed to the Richmond Times-Dispatch from Monterey on the day of his death which we here append.

The death of Peter D. Yeager, which occurred this morning at his old home near the line of the two Virginias, removes a veritable landmark of the Alleghanies. He was an octogenarian, and his long life was spent near the place where he died—the valley of the Greenbrier.

He was long known as the proprietor of Travelers' Repose, a popular hostlery and favorite resort of sportsmen, far and near. Prior to the construction of the Chesapeake and Ohio—the Greenbrier branch—the valley in which his resort was located was an ideal hunting ground, the two prongs of the Greenbrier, which to 5,000 acres, and is now at work on the plans for her new and unique colony.

She will permit her women colonists to have husbands if that condition cannot be avoided, but they will have no part in affairs of the colony. She will endeavor to obtain from the Texas legislature permission for women to exercise the right of suffrage in her colony, and all homes must be in the name of the wife.

Everything that is usually undertaken on Texas farms will be attempted on this Adamless colony, truck farming, fruit raising, bee keeping, dairying, poultry raising, and other kindred farm and ranch pursuits.

Dies Boasting of Good Health.

Having just remarked to friends that he had never felt better since he left the river on which he ran for years as a steamboat steward, Edward Steller, aged 73, fell dead of heart trouble at Louisville, Ky., November 27. He had just taken a glass of beer and had started toward the door, when he cried out with pain and fell.